SCOPE AND CONTENTS
The Archie Wright papers were given to St. Lawrence University by Timothy A. Wright of Madrid, New York in 1995. They cover two organizations of which Wright was president: the Dairy Farmers’ Union of the 1930’s and the Farmers’ Union of the New York Milkshed of the 1940’s and 1950’s. Also included are personal papers and correspondence of Wright, copies of radio talks which he gave on WSLU, and secondary materials on the milk business. The collection is 1.5 linear feet. The University owns the literary rights.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH
Archie Wright was born July 25, 1891, at Westville, New York, the son of William and Mary Hanna Wright. He graduated from Ogdensburg Free Academy in 1911, married Leona Prosser in 1940 and was divorced 1952. William L. and Timothy A. are his sons.

He served as the president of the Dairy Farmers Union of the New York Milkshed from its beginnings in 1941 until his resignation in January 1, 1957. Before that he was the President of the Dairy Farmers Union during the 1930’s. Mr. Wright was the editor and publisher of the Northeastern Union Farmer and had a weekly radio talk show.

18 Dairy Farmers Union Oral History Project

Tape #1 Labor Activity in St. Lawrence County, compiled by St. Lawrence University Professors Robert Schwartz (History) and Richard Guarasci (Government). Tape #1 contains three of four special programs originally broadcast in 1989 on WSLU, FM, Canton, New York. Part One: Overview of the 1939 Dairy Farmers Union milk strike, parts three and four examine the history of the Dairy Farmers Union, its Chairman, Archie Wright, and the DFU’s 1939 milk strike.

Tape #2 The first farmer interviewed on Tape #2 was a participant in the 1933 New York Milk Producers Federation milk strike, organized by Felix and Stanley Piseck. He lived in Boonville, New York, and was interviewed March 25, 1992.

The second farmer interviewed on Tape #2 was a participant in the 1939 Dairy Farmers Union strike in Camden, New York. Called to Camden to reinforce Union picket lines, he was shot by a young man who was guarding the milk of non-striking farmers. He spent thirty days in the hospital (including a week in intensive care), and received a visit from DFU Chairman Archie Wright. He lived in Boonville, and was interviewed March 25, 1992.

The third farmer interviewed on Tape #2 lived in the Boonville area, and discussed his recollections of the 1933 milk strike in Boonville. He was interviewed March 26, 1992.

The fourth farmer, who lived near Lowville, New York, was a founding member of the Lowville Farmers Co-op. In this extensive interview, he discussed many aspects of farming in the North Country from 1929 to the present. He was interviewed March 27, 1992.

Tape #3 The first interview on this tape is a continuation of the previous interview on Tape #2. The second farmer interviewed on Tape #3 was a participant in the 1967 National Farmers Organization (national) milk strike. He lived near Adams, New York, and was interviewed April 7, 1992.

Tape #4 The four small dairy farmers (twenty to twenty five cows in the 1930s) interviewed on this tape lived on the Black Lake Road in the town of Hammond, New York. They spoke on many different topics, including milk strikes, the development of agriculture in the North Country, and farm life. The interviews were conducted on April 7-8, 1992.

Tape #5 The two dairy farmers interviewed on Tape #5 lived near Heuvelton, New York. The first farmer and his son were the owners of a 125 dairy farm in 1992. A long-time Dairymen’s League (Cooperative) member, he recalled the 1939 Dairy Farmers Union strike, which he opposed. The second farmer claimed his father was a founding member of the Dairy Farmers Union in 1936. He recalled the conditions that gave rise to the DFU, and the milk strikes of 1937 and 1939. Both farmers were interviewed April 8, 1992.

Tape #6 The first farmer interviewed on Tape #6 was an employee of the Sheffield Farms milk plant in Heuvelton, New York, during the 1939 Dairy Farmer Union strike. He contributed the photographs of the 1939 strike, that are found in the Dairy Farmers Union/Archie Wright Collection in the ODY Archives. In this interview he discussed the strike and the dairy processing industry in the 1930s. The interview was done on March 10, 1995.
The second farmer interviewed on Tape #6 lived and worked outside the town of Rensselaer Falls, New York. He was 12 years old at the time of the 1939 Dairy Farmers Union milk strike, and remembered the crowds and the excitement that the strike generated. He also spoke on North Country agriculture in the 1930s and 1940s. He was interviewed on March 15, 1995.

Tape #7 There is one interview on Tape #7, with a lifelong dairy farmer from Madrid, New York, whose father was the most successful organizer for the Dairy Farmers Union in the 1930s. He recalled that, as a young man, he also organized farmers for the Union. The interview also contains a discussion of North Country farming, the Depression, and rural life. The interview was conducted June 10, 1995.

Tape #8 Two St. Lawrence University first year students, Lisa DeFone and Melissa Wilson, conducted the interviews on Tapes #8 and #9. Their research involved talking to women who lived and worked on North Country farms in the 1930s and 1940s, in order to better understand the role of women in local agriculture. All of the women (Helen Doyle, Beatrice Hadkinson, Doris Hitchcock, Dorothy Laribee, Ruth Lucas, and Gertrude Macdonald) lived in the Lowville, New York area; the interviews were conducted during April, 1995.

Tape #9 This tape is a continuation of the interviews on Tape #8, conducted by SLU First Year students Lisa DeFone and Melissa Wilson.

Tape #10 Former Canton resident Joan Liebler conducted the interview on Tape #10, with former St. Lawrence Plaindealer editor Atwood Manley. During his discussion of Canton history, Manley discussed the dairy industry, the 1939 Dairy Farmers Union milk strike, his relationship with DFU Chairman Archie Wright, and his (Manley’s) role in negotiations between the DFU and nonstriking farmers.
