• RESEARCH is front and center

• Two ways to search library holdings

• COURSE approach to readings and resources
From the Library Homepage, follow this path to find demographic data on Canterbury, NH.

- American FactFinder (U.S. Census Bureau)
  - Population, housing, economic & geographic data, downloadable data sets

- Databases for Statistics and Data
  - GIS at St. Lawrence University
    - Links to GIS data, and information on SLU facilities
    - varies
  - GPO Monthly Catalog
    - U.S. Government publications
    - 1976-present
  - Historical Statistics of the United States
    - Demographic and economic statistics
    - 1700-present
  - ICPSR
    - Information on ICPSR data archive
    - 1900-present
  - OECD Economic Surveys
    - Periodic in-depth reviews of the economies of OECD Member and Non-Member countries
    - 1961-present
  - ProQuest Statistical Insight
    - U.S. and international statistics
    - 1972-present
  - U.S. Statistics Sites
    - Statistics compiled by the U.S. Federal Government
    - varies
Encore – Search for books, videos, digital collections...

- Enter a keyword search in Encore to find books, videos and digital collections
- Use quotation marks to search for an exact phrase
- There’s an implied AND between words/phrases

Results 1 - 2 of 2 for "affordable housing" zoning

- You can refine your results by format, location, language, date...
- And, you can use Tags to refine your results by subject.
- ConnectNY provides access to more sources.
• This book is AVAILABLE in the ODY Upper Level, under the Library of Congress Call Number HD 7293 .T774 1991

• If this book had been checked-out, you could use ConnectNY to request a copy from another college in New York.

• Click on any of these Subject Headings to find more books on this topic.

• Add the citation for this book to your RefWorks account so you can include it in your research and bibliography later.
Finding Journal Articles

- All of the disciplines taught at St. Lawrence are displayed on the library homepage.
- GENERAL SOURCES is an excellent starting place for many researchers.

- There’s no one, single “right” index. Use a combination if indexes to do comprehensive research.
- Academic Search Complete provides broad, multi-disciplinary coverage and supports “Federated Searching”.

---

[Diagram of library homepage with links to different databases and indexes]

[Diagram of Academic Search Complete database]

---
Before you enter search terms, click on Choose Databases to search multiple indexes at the same time.

Check off all of the indexes that pertain to your research topic and search them simultaneously (this is called Federated Searching).
• Enter appropriate keywords.

• You can restrict your results to Scholarly /Peer Reviewed Journals only if you wish, or you select only Magazines if your audience is younger or less educated.

• The FULL TEXT of many articles is available online.

• HTML Full Text – words only, prints quickly.

• PDF Full Text – words, graphics, and charts are included; might take a while to download and print.

• Linked Full Text – takes you to a PDF in another database.
• Use FIND@SLU to locate journal articles that are not FULL TEXT.

Title: Zoning in the United States, Part 4.

Author: Foster.

Published in: Point of Beginning

v. 33  no. 6, pp. 56-58  Date: 20080301

Journal Article

Search by title in Journal Finder

If not available through Journal Finder, request article via ILLiad

• If we don’t have a subscription to the journal you need, you can request the article via Interlibrary Loan
• Use the Advanced Search to find news articles from around the world.

Google Scholar

• Use Google Scholar to find “legal documents” (law review articles, court records...)

Thanks for attending!
Rhonda Courtney
Public Services Librarian
St. Lawrence University
ODY 114
315-229-5479
rcourtney@stlawu.edu